Most of my work has been supporting projects for public entities such as Federal, state, and local environmental agencies and non-governmental organizations, providing them with data and tools to help make informed policy decisions. This includes decarbonization studies to help mitigate climate change concerns and developing environmental impact assessments while working in Ireland. As I now have more free time, I am keen to use my experiences and skills in a meaningful way to help the community I live in (I have been a Chatham County resident since 1994). I noticed that the county has two committees that seem appropriate for my background: 1) Environmental Review Advisory Committee and 2) Climate Change Advisory Committee.
