Robertson	Enact a state moratorium on new data center permitting, eliminate state-level tax incentives for hyper-scale computing facilities, and establish strict utility "large load" protections to ensure residential ratepayers do not subsidize Big Tech energy use.	This ensures that families and small businesses are not hit with sharp rate hikes (such as the double-digit percentage increases recently debated before the NC Utilities Commission) just to fund the infrastructure needed by Big Tech.	Amend G.S. § 62-2 (State Policy) to legally redefine Duke Energy's core operating charter as a public benefit obligation.
Howard	Repeal NCGS 106(D) prohibiting downzoning and/or seek clarifying language that allows counties to implement zoning that meets the needs and conditions of their specific locale.	NC counties are unique, and their needs are distinct so the solutions available to local policymakers should be equally unique and specific.	Restore funding that was diverted from NC's traditional public schools into the voucher system.
Kenlan	Seek legislation to provide additional resources for preventative storm damage maintenance and disaster mitigation in all 100 counties.	We have started to see a rise in flood damage (ie Chantel, Helen). I would like all counties to be proactive in funding resources, permitting and county infrastructure to support their residents in times of crisis and mitigate crisis	Seek legislation to increase recurring state funding to local health departments for foundational/essential public health services.pport state funding to research and combat invasive species.

Gomez Flores	Environment: establish an effort geared at assessing waterways (creeks, streams, and rivers) and on the stress (clogged by debris) endured that contributes to flooding. And fund the clearing of debris.	prevent flooding, helps with tourism by cleaning up our waterways.	Health: Seek legislation regulating presence of lead in over the counter items (baby toys and metal keys) that may be intended for children and accessed by children.

Duke's legal priority shifts from generating corporate profit to optimizing community affordability and well-being. The NC Utilities Commission would have the legal teeth to reject expensive corporate infrastructure plans.	Repeal laws that allow Duke Energy to pass 100% of fossil fuel price volatility directly onto household electric bills via automatic fuel riders. Force Duke Energy shareholders to bear a minimum of 50% of the financial risk for fossil fuel market spikes.	This creates an immediate corporate financial incentive to rapidly build out low-cost, domestic solar, wind, and battery storage.	Provide supplemental funding to advance affordable, high-quality learning opportunities that support an expansion of the early childhood workforce.
NC's public schools meet the education needs of the vast majority of students and are one of the state's largest employers. Adequate funding is essential to meet our educational mandate, and the diversion of funds has undermined decades of progress.	Seek legislation to increase state funding for disaster mitigation and preparedness, especially for climate-related disasters.	Most NC counties are un- or underprepared for climate change and we need a coordinated effort and adequate funding to build resilient communities.	Seek legislation to remove cost-share penalty for counties for SNAP errors.
This shapes the health of our counties including and the many farms NC is home to. Invasives can hurt our local economies and have wide range of health impacts.	Seek legislation to provide increased recurring state funding in keeping with comparable sales for farmland preservation initiatives and additional flexibility to counties related to farmland preservation.	NC is the state in the nation with the fastest loss of farmland. Anything we can do to protect this part of our economy and food infrastructure is vital	Seek additional resources and state leadership for adult protective services, senior services and foster care.

decrease the rate of developmental complications due to lead poisoning	public education: return to allocating the initial 35% of lottery profits to public education	additional revenue for schools	Money: seek legislation that gives counties flexibility on generating revenue for operations or expand our options.

Counties can unlock hidden labor supply. Parents—especially mothers—can rejoin the local workforce, helping small businesses, manufacturing plants, and healthcare facilities fill critical job openings.	Advance policies that improve family economic stability, health, and access to essential services for young children, such as by increasing Medicaid reimbursement rates and supporting Tax-free family essential items.	By keeping families financially stable before they hit a crisis, this goal helps reduce the crushing case management workloads and financial administrative burdens currently straining county DSS budgets.
The penalty unfairly penalizes counties for errors that are not willful or malicious and will cost NC counties millions in lost tax revenue.
There has been a loss in these resources across the state for many years. All counties have people who fit into these categories and in need of these services. NC could have a stronger reputation for protecting these populations & providing quality care.	Support legislation for clean water funds and hold companies that have manufactured emerging and other contaminants such as coal ash, PFOA, PFOS and other PFAS chemicals financially liable for cleanup and mitigation efforts.	There is no person on earth now who has escaped the impact of these chemicals in their body. We need to use tax payer money wisely and not pick up the bill for the companies responsible for their use and manufacturing.

given the interest of the majority of the GA in limiting property taxes, we need to advocate for alternative avenues for counties to generate revenue. additional revenue for county operations,	federal: genuine immigration reform (significant expansion of work permit programs, GreenCards for DACA Recipients,	lack of interest by Americans in seeking certain jobs, retirees outpacing youth entering workforce, staffing of our essential worker positions.
