Why do you wish to serve the county in this capacity?

As a public health dentist and director of the North Carolina Oral Health Collaborative (NCOHC), I'm seeking a position on the Chatham County Board of Health in order to apply my diverse experience in clinical practice, public health administration, and health care policymaking to the critical mission of protecting and improving the health of all Chatham County residents. In the North Carolina policymaking arena, I've been involved in both legislative change and regulatory rule-making, working extensively with local and state officials as well as outside stakeholders. With faculty appointments at the UNC Gillings School of Global Public Health and the UNC Adams School of Dentistry, I also value the importance of research and take a deliberative, evidence-based approach to public health policy and decision-making. The COVID-19 pandemic has further underscored the importance of public health, and the Board of Health has an integral role to play in protecting and improving the lives of all
