Why do you wish to serve in this capacity? I believe public service is among the best things I can do to support my community, and that I should offer my service especially when the need for servants so clearly aligns with my skills and experience. As a newly minted North Carolinian (as of 2021) myself, I know it's important to consider the needs and experiences of all the different people who will make up the Chatham County of the future. I also know that our development choices will have lasting impacts on our environment, and I care deeply about ensuring that our choices support long-term sustainability. I am a young professional and a renter in Chatham County, and I want to help ensure that this county offers young and low or moderate-income people like me the opportunity to make a home and thrive here for the long term. That's only possible with diverse voices in the room, and I want to faithfully represent people who may struggle to find dignified and affordable housing.

Education/Experience: I've been interested in planning, housing, and development throughout my professional experience and education. I took multiple courses on geography, affordable housing, community development, and land use for my Bachelor's Degree, and pursued a concentration in community development and affordable housing planning while pursuing my Master of Public Administration degree at UNC Chapel Hill. I've previously provided support in a handful of planning or housing adjacent roles in North Carolina including the City of Mebane and Chatham County through my work at Central Pines Regional Council. I also worked for a statewide community development association and a county land bank while living in Michigan. In all these roles, I've developed familiarity with codes of ordinances, site plans, the planning and decision-making process, and relationships with communities and prospective developers. I bring a useful base of knowledge and experience, and I will apply it to serve this community.
