Receive Presentation from Lead for America

This presentation is the product of a Lead For America fellowship program involving undergraduate students from UNC and Duke interested in local government and policy. The presentation highlights creative examples about community engagement and community development projects that could one day be considered and researched further for Chatham. The students began in June, and this presentation is their final product. Rather than recommendations, the presentation leaves Chatham with guiding principles and questions to consider as we think about ways to perform community engagement and development in the future.
